

Names Listed in the Central Normal College Quarterly, Danville, Indiana, July 1901

Stephanie M. Schulze and Chelsea Sutton

The Central Normal College was established in Ladoga, Indiana, in 1876 and was moved to Danville, Hendricks County, Indiana, in 1878. The college primarily served as a training school for teachers. It continued under this name until 1946, when it was bought by the Episcopal Church and renamed Canterbury College. The school closed in 1951.¹ After its move to Danville, the college quickly drew in more students than the founder expected, and as of 1901 it had “enrolled more Indiana teachers than any other college.”² Though both men and women of all ages were allowed to enroll, the school had a published policy refusing admittance to “colored students.”³ The majority of students came from Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio, and Tennessee, but the college also drew students from as far as Missouri, Texas, and Mexico.

This edition of the Central Normal College Quarterly is from July 1901 and includes information pertaining to classes and fees for the academic year 1901–02 as well as a catalogue of students for the academic year 1900–01. The college offered different courses of study including law, business, music, classic, scientific, bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, and of course teaching. The “Teachers’ Course” was offered during a student’s second year and included studies in algebra, rhetoric, physiology, oratory, American literature, U.S. history, geography, government, and psychology. Students lived in homes of Danville residents rather than in dorms for a cost of fifty cents per week, and board was $1.50 per week for the 1901–02 school year. The school provided students with special offers such as “tuition, board and room rent for a school year of 48 weeks, if paid in advance” for $128.00.⁴

While small, these college publications provide invaluable information about the students and faculty of the college. This type of source is fairly easy to access today. As a result of digitization projects, many college quarterlies, bulletins, catalogs, and circulars are now available on Web sites such as the HathiTrust Digital Library (www.hathitrust.org) and Internet Archive (www.archive.org). Some Indiana college publications that have been digitized include Moore’s Hill College Annual Catalogue, Evansville College Bulletin, Goshen College Bulletin, and The Earlham College Bulletin. These college publications are also readily available at the Indiana Historical Society and the Indiana State Library. Many can also be found at local historical societies and, if the university or college still exists, at the college and university archives.

This Central Normal College Quarterly was donated to the Indiana Historical Society by Dixie Richardson. Below are the transcribed names of the students who attended Central Normal College for the academic year of 1900–01 and the faculty and administrators of Central Normal College for the academic year of 1901–02. All names are presented in the order in which they appear in the Quarterly.
