Indiana Extracts from Kansas Periodicals

Roger Lawton and Natalie Burriss

To widen its knowledge of genealogical information for Indiana, the Indiana Historical Society takes part in an exchange with genealogical and historical organizations across the country. The IHS sends out The Hoosier Genealogist: Connections in return for receiving the publications of other organizations. A volunteer with the IHS reads through the incoming publications to find listings of people with Indiana connections. The genealogical data below comes from the publications of the following organizations in Kansas: the Kansas Genealogical Society, the Riley County Genealogical Society, the Topeka Genealogical Society, and the Tri City Genealogical Society. The names and issues of the periodicals are listed with the data, along with names of articles, authors where specified, and years of publication. All data is transcribed exactly as it appears in the publications except where noted. Where information is needed for clarity, the compilers have inserted it in brackets. All periodical issues listed below are available for further research in the Genealogy Collection at the Indiana State Library in Indianapolis.

“Early Settlers of Gray County, Kansas, Part I”
Contributed by Norma Daniels from the Jacksonian, April 26, 1945 page 103

James Harvey Egbert, the son of Israel Egbert and Mary Coleman, was born in Morgantown, Indiana August 15, 1861 and died April 17, 1945 at the age of 83 years, 8 months and 2 days. Harve, as he was commonly called, spent his early childhood on a farm near Morgantown, Indiana. He received his education in Morgantown city schools and at the age of 16 taught his first rural school in Brown County, Indiana. After teaching school a few years he accepted a position as station agent for the Big Four Railroad which he held until coming to Kansas in 1883. He returned to Indiana for a few months and in October 1886 he moved with his parents to Gray County, Kansas and filed on a homestead about five miles southwest of Cimarron.

“Ivanhoe, Haskell County, Kansas”
[From?] “Haskell County, 100 years Beneath the Plow, McClure, Janice Lee, Editor[;]
Haskell County, Kansas 1887–1987: A Historical Anthology, Haskell County Historical Society, Inc., 1988”
pages 103–06

All that remains of Ivanhoe, once a contender for the Haskell county seat of government, is a little cemetery. The site, 10 miles north of Sublette, on the west side of US Hwy 83, is well-kept but little used.

In the late 1800s when this area was mostly prairie and people mostly homesteaders, Ivanhoe claimed a population of about 1000. Santa Fe, [its] rival for the county seat designation, claimed [a population of] about 1,500. Historians believe about half of each number would be more accurate.

The county seat election was held October 13, 1887. When the votes were counted, Santa Fe has 647, Ivanhoe has 381. The result of the bitter fight between the two towns and the outcome spelled the end of Ivanhoe and its supporters. All that remains is a Santa Fe Trails marker that identifies what was once the City of Ivanhoe.

“Free State Constitution for Kansas”
Transcribed and submitted by Don Lambert

In an effort to get Kansas admitted into the Union as a Free State rather than as a slave state, nearly 40 men from the Kansas Territory (eastern Kansas) wrote the Topeka or Free State Constitution in the fall of 1855. It took two weeks to write the constitution which said, most notably, “There shall be no slavery in this state.” The Constitution was written in Constitution Hall at 427–429 Kansas Avenue in Topeka and has been listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Efforts are underway to restore the building; its first floor is now covered by a colorful mural depicting an 1856 event there known as the Dispersion of the Free State Legislature.

Don Lambert, one of the volunteers helping with the project, is hoping to find descendants of the men who signed the Topeka Constitution. Below is a list of the signers, the towns where they lived in 1855, the towns from which they had come, and their ages at the time. Those with information about these descendants may contact Lambert at dlambert0753@yahoo.com or call him at 816-753-0753.

When we read these names and dates, they hold no life lessons and provide no historical insight for us today:

Thomas Speakes
- Born 20 Nov 1806 Henry Co., KY
- Married Nancy Henderson, 18 Oct 1826, IN
- Married Mary Ann Ewing, 7 Oct 1863, Linn Co., KS
- Died 10 Mar 1886 Pleasanton, Linn Co., KS

Here is the story behind the names and dates.

Born in Henry County, Kentucky in 1806, Thomas Speakes moved with his parents and three brothers a 100 miles north to Daviess County, Indiana when he was about 4 years old. Ten years later, Thomas’ parents, Joseph and Sally, drowned when a wagon in which they were crossing the frozen White River plunged through the ice. His 2-year-old sister, Mary Polly, was thrown by her mother onto the ice and miraculously rescued by passing strangers. Under the guardianship of their maternal aunt and her husband, Thomas and his seven orphaned brothers and sisters were raised in southwestern Indiana.

When he was about 19, Thomas travelled back across the Kentucky border to Henry County, married Nancy Henderson in 1826, and had a son, William in 1828. They moved to Hamilton County, Indiana, where eight more children were born over the course of 25 years. No doubt Thomas entertained his four sons and five daughters in the evening with stories of his grandfather’s service in the Revolutionary War. Perhaps he knew, too, of the courage of his ancestor Johannis, who brought his young family to Maryland Colony from England in 1639.

In 1845, Thomas and Nancy Speakes’ oldest son William married and started a family. The granddaughter of a German mercenary soldier hired by the British to fight in the Revolutionary War, Susanah Ault married at age 15, bore a son who died at age 2, brought our ancestor Thomas Jefferson Speakes into the world 1 year later, and died at age 18 giving birth to William’s third child, Nancy. William married an old maid, Zenith Cook, then 25, who raised his son and infant daughter as her own.

In 1858, when Thomas and Nancy Speakes’ youngest child, Semantha, was just 1 year old, their entire family (including William, Zenith and the children) migrated 500 miles west from central Indiana across Missouri to the eastern edge of Kansas, and settled in Linn County.
