Since 1830, the Indiana Historical Society has been Indiana’s Storyteller™, connecting people to the past by collecting, preserving and sharing the state's history. A private, nonprofit membership organization, IHS maintains the nation's premier research library and archives on the history of Indiana and the Old Northwest and presents a unique set of visitor experiences called the Indiana Experience. IHS also provides support and assistance to local museums and historical groups; publishes books and periodicals; sponsors teacher workshops; produces and hosts art exhibitions, museum theater and outside performance groups; and provides youth, adult and family programs. IHS is a Smithsonian Affiliate and a member of the International Coalition of Sites of Conscience.
History of Indiana Avenue

The neighborhood known as Indiana Avenue has been a part of Indianapolis since the city was first planned in 1821. Located within the northwest quadrant, the area was often swampy with flooding from the White River. Working-class Irish and German immigrants were the first people to live in the area in the 1830s. By 1870, following a cultural and racial shift, one third of all Black Indianapolis residents called Indiana Avenue home. They established businesses and other neighborhood amenities. The Indianapolis Ledger was first published in the mid-1870s and was the first successful Black-owned newspaper in the city. The area quickly became the hub of Indianapolis African American life.

The Avenue continued to grow and flourish between 1915 and 1950. If you took a walk on Indiana Avenue, you would see a vibrant African American community. Black-owned businesses lined the streets of the neighborhood. Churches like Bethel African Methodist Episcopal served as its moral foundation. Jazz clubs filled the air with music from artists that would become some of the era’s greatest musicians. Young men and women gathered at the YMCA and YWCA.

By the end of the 1950s, however, the vibrant neighborhood began to dim. Fewer segregation laws in the city meant African Americans were able to move into previously racially segregated districts. As middle-class families moved out, the Avenue began to deteriorate. By the 1970s, it was crumbling. At the same time, the city and newly formed IUPUI began to buy properties for redevelopment. Much of the neighborhood was demolished and replaced by university buildings, office buildings, interstates, townhouses and parking lots.

Sundown Towns were a product of segregation. White areas placed restrictions on Black people and other minorities through local laws, intimidation and even violence. The term “Sundown Town” came from posted signs that demanded that all “colored people” had to leave town by sunset. Other restrictions were placed on African Americans, including charging a fee to have their children attend schools in areas that were mostly white. Black people were quickly pushed out of suburbs and migrated to cities because of rules like these.

Crispus Attucks High School

During the 20th century, only three Indianapolis high schools enrolled Black students. Due to overcrowding, a debate began about what a new high school could look like. Many called for an integrated school, but in the end all Black students in the city were sent to Crispus Attucks High School. The high school rose above its challenges. Matthias Nolcox, the first principal, hired well-educated teachers and created an extensive curriculum. Graduates of Crispus Attucks have become some of the foremost African American leaders, musicians, athletes and more.

PLAYER PIECE CHARACTER BIOGRAPHIES

Madam C.J. Walker

Born Sarah Breedlove on Dec. 23, 1867, Madam C.J. Walker grew up in Delta, Louisiana. She suffered from a scalp ailment that caused her to lose her hair. Because of this, she began to create her own line of African American hair care products. To promote her beauty line, she traveled the country giving demonstrations on how to use the products she had created. In 1910, she moved her business operations to Indianapolis and her success was magnified. She became the first Black female millionaire. She is well known for her philanthropic endeavors including donating money that helped establish the Senate Avenue YMCA.

The Madam C.J. Walker Legacy Center is a culture and arts center located on Indiana Avenue that opened in 1927 as the Walker Theatre. The theater has become an important African American cultural center and is now registered as a National Historic Landmark.

Madam Walker died on May 25, 1919.

Find out more about Madam Walker in the Destination Indiana journey online at www.destination-indiana.com. Search “Madam C.J. Walker.”

Freeman B. Ransom

Freeman Briley Ransom was born in 1880 in Grenada, Mississippi, and was one of 16 children. He graduated from Walden University and Columbia University with degrees in law and divinity. He became a lawyer, businessmen and civic activist who lived and worked in Indianapolis. From 1910 until 1947, he served as legal counsel to Madam C.J. Walker and the general manager of Madam C.J. Walker Manufacturing Company. Under his leadership, the company became a national model for entrepreneurship in the United States.

A’Lelia, Walker’s daughter, and Ransom worked together to establish the Walker Theatre. This became a hub for African American culture in the city. Because of his work with the Madam C.J. Walker Manufacturing Company and others around the city, he was honored when the Ransom Place Historic District was named after him.
Wes Montgomery

John Leslie “Wes” Montgomery was born March 6, 1923, in Indianapolis. Montgomery gained fame as an American jazz guitarist who was known for his technique of plucking the strings with the side of his thumb, which created a unique sound. He focused his early career on hard bop, soul jazz and post-bop, and his later career on jazz fusion and smooth jazz.

Montgomery taught himself how to play the guitar at the age of 19. He was unable to read music well, but instead copied the sounds of Charlie Christian. Much of his short career, Montgomery played with his brothers, Buddy and Monk, and organist Jimmy Smith. Montgomery died suddenly of a heart attack at the age of 43.

Matthias Nolcox

Matthias Nolcox was born on April 4, 1886, in Lyles Station, Indiana. After graduating from Indiana State University, he became the principal of Patoka High School. In 1922, he began teaching at Indianapolis School 26. During the summers, he took classes at Harvard University to earn his Ph.D. in education. Nolcox then became the first principal of the newly formed Crispus Attucks High School. Because many higher-educated African Americans struggled to get jobs at universities, Nolcox was able to hire exceptional teachers and establish an extensive curriculum. This combination allowed African American students in Indianapolis to receive a strong education. Many of the city’s notable leaders were educated at Crispus Attucks.
Oscar Robertson

Oscar Robertson was born into a poor family in Tennessee on Nov. 24, 1938. They moved to Indianapolis where he lived in a segregated housing project and attended Crispus Attucks High School. He started his basketball career by tossing tennis balls and rags into a peach basket because his family could not afford equipment. Once in high school, he joined the basketball team – one that would have great success while Robertson was there. The championship game Crispus Attucks played against Milan High School would inspire the movie Hoosiers.

Professionally, Robertson was nicknamed “The Big O” and played for the Cincinnati Royals and the Milwaukee Bucks. He played as point guard and was a 12-time All-Star and winner of the MVP award.

Find out more about Oscar Robertson and the Crispus Attucks basketball team in the Destination Indiana journey “Crispus Attucks Tigers Basketball Team” at www.destination-indiana.com.

Frances Connecticut Stout

Frances Connecticut Stout was born in 1906 in Indianapolis. Stout attended Butler University and the University of Illinois and earned a master’s degree from each school. Much of her teaching career was spent at Crispus Attucks High School, where she served as the head of the school’s foreign language department.

Stout was also an active member of the Bethel AME Church where she served as secretary for the Board of Stewards, a secretary for the Church Conference, a Church Leader, and Bethel’s historian and archivist.

Outside of education and religion, she was also involved in social organizations such as Flanner House, National Council of Negro Women and Alpha Kappa Alpha sorority.

Find out about Bethel AME Church in Destination Indiana at www.destination-indiana.com.
Denver Ferguson

Denver Ferguson was born in 1895, and Sea Ferguson was born in 1899. The brothers are well-known for their entrepreneurial endeavors. Before they moved on to own entertainment venues on Indiana Avenue, they began in the printing and newspaper business. They went on to own the Trianon Ballroom, Royal Palm Gardens, the Cotton Club and Sunset Terrace Ballroom. They also established the Ferguson Brothers Agency that brought big name music artists to Indianapolis. Denver also opened a real estate business so successful that he became a millionaire. Sea was a bowling champion and opened his own bowling alley in Indianapolis.

Lillian Thomas Fox

Lillian Thomas Fox was born in 1854 in Indianapolis. She was a journalist, club woman, public speaker and civic activist. She wrote articles for the Indianapolis Freeman, a leading Black newspaper. By 1900, Fox joined the Indianapolis News – the first African American columnist to write for a white newspaper in Indiana.

She was a social activist and advocate for improving access to public health. She was involved in a number of community organizations including the National Afro-American Council, and Indianapolis Anti-Lynching League and the National Association for Colored Women’s Clubs.

Dora Atkins Blackburn

Dora Atkins Blackburn was born in Anderson in 1903. When she was young, her family moved to Indianapolis. Her parents both died in 1923. Three years later, she graduated from Butler University. After their mother’s death, Dora and her sister Murray took over the management of their mother’s flower shop. They operated Atkins Flower Shop for the next 56 years.

Blackburn was an active community member as well as a businesswoman. She was a member of the North United Methodist Church, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Booklovers, Indianapolis Links and Northeasterners. She also served on the boards of the Alpha Home, Flanner House and Indianapolis Art League.
GAME INSTRUCTIONS

Object
The object of the game is to become the wealthiest player through buying, renting and selling.

Preparation
Place the board on the table and put the Chance and Community Chest cards in their spaces. Each player chooses one player piece to travel around the board.

Players start with $1,500. Each player gets two $500, four $100, one $50, one $20, two $10, one $5 and five $1.

All other houses, hotels and money go to the Bank. Use small paper clips for houses and large ones for hotels.

Banker
Select one player to be the Banker. This person must keep their personal funds separate from the Bank. They are responsible for handling money as the bank and giving players their $200 salary when they pass Go.

The Banker sells houses and hotels to other players.

The Banker collects all taxes, fines and loans, and provides loans for all mortgaged properties.

If the Bank runs low on money, they can simply make more.

All money from Taxes, Community Chest and Chance card fines are placed in the center of the board. When a player lands on “School Scholarship,” he or she collects that money.

Auctioneer
Select one player to be the Auctioneer. This person is responsible for handling the property deeds before they are sold.
To Play
Each player rolls the dice and whoever has the highest number goes first.

As you make your way around the board, select a card based on the space you land – Community Chest or Chance – select a card from the middle and follow the directions.

All Taxes, Community Chest and Chance card fines are placed in the center of the board and won when a player lands on the “School Scholarship.”

If you throw doubles, move your player piece and play as usual. Following your turn, roll again. If you roll doubles three times in a row, move your piece directly to “Home.”

Each time a player passes “Go,” the Banker pays the player $200.

Buy Property
When you land on unowned property, you may buy that property from the Bank. When you buy a property, the Auctioneer will give you the Title Deed card.

If you do not wish to buy the property, you can simply pass.

Pay Rent
When you land on property owned by another player, the owner collects rent from you in accordance with the list printed on its Title Deed card.

If the property is mortgaged, no rent can be collected. When a property is mortgaged, the Title Deed card is placed face down in front of the owner.

If a player collects all the properties in a color group, the owner can begin to charge double rent. They are also able to begin to buy houses and hotels.

Sundown Town Curfew and Home
You land at Home when:
1. You draw a card marked “Go Home”
2. You roll doubles three times in a row.

When you are sent Home, do not collect $200 even if you pass Go.

If you land on the Home space during a normal roll, you are just visiting. There is no penalty and you may continue to play as normal.
You can get out of Home by:
1. Rolling a double on any of your next three turns.
2. Using a “Leave Home Free” card.
3. Paying a fine of $50 before rolling for the next turn.
If you do not roll doubles by the third turn, you must pay the $50 fine.
Even when you are at Home, you may buy, sell and rent property.

Crispus Attucks School Scholarship
The player who lands on this space collects all the money from the center of the board.

House and Hotels
When a player owns all the properties in the same color group, they can begin to buy houses for those properties.
Double rent is collected on all unimproved properties if the owner owns all in the same color group.
When a player has four houses on each of their properties in the same color group, they may begin to buy hotels for those properties.
Houses and hotels are bought from the Bank and can be represented with small and large paper clips.

Sell Properties
All unimproved properties – no houses or hotels – can be sold between players at any time for any amount.
If there are houses or hotels on a property, they must be sold back to the Bank before the property can be sold.
The Bank can buy back houses and hotels for half the original price.
Mortgages

All unimproved properties can be mortgaged through the Bank at any time. If there are houses or hotels on the property, they must be sold back to the Bank before the property can be mortgaged.

The mortgage value is on each card.

When a property is mortgaged, that card must be turned over.

To lift a mortgage, the owner must pay the Bank the mortgage value plus 10%.

No rent can be collected on mortgaged properties, but the player still owns the property.

Mortgaged properties can be sold to other players, but the new owner must pay the price of the mortgage plus 10% to have the mortgage lifted.

Bankruptcy

This happens when a player owes more than they have in money and property.

If a player goes bankrupt, they are finished with the game.

Finish the Game

The game can end in several different ways:

1. One player declares bankruptcy and all remaining players calculate the value of their property and money.
2. One by one, players declare bankruptcy and the last player to do so wins.
3. When all players decide to end the game, even if no one has declared bankruptcy, players calculate the value of property and money and the player with the most wins.

SEA FERGUSON’S FUN BOWL

Sea Ferguson, of the famous Ferguson Brothers, opened Sea Ferguson’s Fun Bowl in March 1941 at 750 North West St. in Indianapolis. Ferguson was an avid bowler and an officer in the National Negro Bowling Association. Ferguson’s Fun Bowl was a popular and accepting place for the city’s Black community as most bowling alleys weren’t welcoming.

DOUGLASS PARK

Thanks to a campaign organized by a reporter from the Indianapolis Recorder, Douglass Park, named for abolitionist Frederick Douglass, opened in 1927. Located at 1616 East 25th St. in Indianapolis, this park meant that African Americans had access to leisure activities that systematic segregation had prevented them from enjoying. Douglass Park quickly became a popular spot for community gatherings even though it was far from the hub of Indiana Avenue.

FLANNER HOUSE

Flanner House is the first settlement house in Indianapolis. Settlement houses were designed to connect the rich and poor both physically and socially. These organizations provided a variety of services, including daycare, education and healthcare aimed at improving the lives of low-income people. Flanner House was founded in 1898 and continues to provide services for low-income communities.

WARD’S SANITARIUM

Existing from 1907 to 1912, Ward’s Sanitarium was the first Indianapolis medical facility established by African Americans. Located at 721-722 Indiana Ave., the facility was housed inside a large two-story house. It included 17 patient rooms, an operating room, a sterilizing room and a preparation room. Dr. Joseph H. Ward also invested more than $2,000 for equipment to begin the sanitarium.

The Indiana Theatre, located on 140 W. Washington St., was built in 1927 as a movie palace and ballroom. The beautiful building was designed by the Rubush and Hunter architecture firm in the Spanish Baroque style. People from all over Indianapolis enjoyed this ornate building and the entertainment it offered. This historic building is now home to the Indiana Repertory Theatre.

Pioneer Theatre

The Pioneer Theatre at 515 Indiana Ave. was the place to watch movies on Indiana Avenue in the late 1910s and 1920s. It was well-known for showing the latest and best pictures. Pioneer Theatre went through a series of different owners before it eventually became the Movieland Theatre.

Lockefield Gardens was the first public housing built in Indianapolis. Constructed between 1935 and 1938, it was intended primarily for low-income residents of Indianapolis. It was funded through President Franklin D. Roosevelt’s New Deal. The project cost $3 million and created 9,000 temporary construction jobs. The Russ and Harrison architecture firm designed 748 housing units that filled 22 acres of land along Indiana Avenue.

Ransom Place was first established as a Black neighborhood in 1897 and is the oldest African American neighborhood in Indianapolis. It was named after Freeman B. Ransom, an attorney and general manager of the Madam C.J. Walker Manufacturing Company. The neighborhood flourished until the 1950s when African Americans began to move outside of the neighborhood as racial housing discrimination policies loosened. Eventually, the neighborhood was revitalized and marked as a historic district in Indianapolis.

Housing options for Indianapolis’ Black residents were limited in the early 1900s. Building or buying new houses wasn’t an easy option, so many African Americans lived in neighborhoods like Pat Ward’s Bottom near Crispus Attucks High School. The 1945 Indiana Redevelopment Act sought to rid cities of areas they considered “slums.” The Indianapolis Redevelopment Commission chose the Pat Ward’s Bottom neighborhood to clear first. By 1948, many homes in the neighborhood had been demolished.

ININDIANA THEATRE

ININDIANA THEATRE

The Indiana Theatre, located on 140 W. Washington St., was built in 1927 as a movie palace and ballroom. The beautiful building was designed by the Rubush and Hunter architecture firm in the Spanish Baroque style. People from all over Indianapolis enjoyed this ornate building and the entertainment it offered. This historic building is now home to the Indiana Repertory Theatre.
