INTRODUCTION

The initial order book of the U.S. District Court for the District of Indiana comprises the record of the first cases and proceedings from the court's inception to 1833. It reveals the history of the organization of the court, listing the names of judges, attorneys, court clerks, justices of the peace, plaintiffs, defendants, and jurors. The presiding judge of the court during this period was Benjamin Parke.

Cases regarding land transactions and bankruptcies are recorded, along with a few naturalizations, criminal cases, and contempt and divorce proceedings. Some cases have full descriptions, including settlements. Also cited is the work of Indian agent Benjamin Stickney, who dealt with people trading improperly with Native Americans.

The William Henry Smith Memorial Library of the Indiana Historical Society has made digital images of the entire order book available online through its Web site, <http://www.indianahistory.org/library/>. Click on Digital Images Collection under Quick Links at the top of the Home page to start your search and learn how to download high-resolution pages from the order book.

The index below contains the names of every person mentioned in the U.S. District Court Order Book, District of Indiana, along with the page numbers where the names are found in the order book. If you find a person you are looking for in the index, use the link here to go directly to the collection description for the court order book. You will see that the order book is divided into years with the page numbers given within each year. Click on the year that contains the page numbers given next to the individual below, and scroll through the pages within that year. To download a high-resolution image of any of the pages, see the directions on the Digital Images Collection page mentioned in the last paragraph.

Special thanks to Kathleen M. Breen, editor, Indiana Historical Society Press, and Barbara Lee, Family History Publications volunteer, who assisted in the preparation of this index.
