

Collection #
M 0561

ALFRED F. (ALFRED FREMONT) POTTS
PAPERS, 1852–1916 (BULK 1905–1916)

Collection Information	1
Biographical Sketch	2
Scope and Content Note	3
Contents	4

Processed by
Charles Latham
15 November 1990
Updated 25 January 2005

Manuscript and Visual Collections Department
William Henry Smith Memorial Library
Indiana Historical Society
450 West Ohio Street
Indianapolis, IN 46202-3269

www.indianahistory.org

COLLECTION INFORMATION

VOLUME OF COLLECTION: 1 manuscript box, 1 photograph folder

COLLECTION DATES: 1852-1916

PROVENANCE: Gift of Harry Huffman, Zionsville, IN, 28 June 1990

RESTRICTIONS: None

REPRODUCTION RIGHTS: Permission to reproduce or publish material in this collection must be obtained from the Indiana Historical Society.

ALTERNATE FORMATS:

RELATED HOLDINGS:

ACCESSION NUMBER: 1990.0385

NOTES:

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Alfred Fremont Potts (1856-1927), lawyer, business and civic leader, was born in Richmond, Indiana, the son of Dr. Alfred Potts and Mary Pope Potts. His father, a surgeon, died during the Civil War, and his education after grade school was largely self-administered.

Potts was admitted to the Marion County bar in 1876, and in the following year he formed a legal partnership with John L. Griffiths. This partnership, which lasted twenty-five years, made use of Griffiths' skill as an orator backed by Potts's ability to prepare cases; it achieved some notable successes in defending what had been considered hopeless criminal cases. It broke up when Griffiths became involved in politics, ending in a long tenure as consul-general in Great Britain, while Potts gave more time to civic and business matters.

Potts married May Barney of Indianapolis. They had two daughters: Deborah, who married Norman Cook, and Marjorie, who married first Walter Vonnegut and then humorist Don Marquis.

Along with Col. Eli Lilly and William Fortune, Potts was one of the chief founders of the Commercial Club, later the Chamber of Commerce. He was also involved in promoting construction of the Board of Trade Building (southeast corner of Ohio and Meridian Streets) and the Claypool Hotel. In 1908 he ran unsuccessfully for the State Senate. His major achievement, however, was in the gas industry. In 1887, at the beginning of the natural gas boom in central Indiana, Potts devised a plan for controlling the industry which called for a company with private capital, managed by a board of self-perpetuating trustees, and restricted to 8% annual earnings. This plan, instituted in Indianapolis, was meant to eliminate politics and stock manipulation and to provide gas to the public at a fair price. Potts was instrumental in setting up the same kind of organization for manufactured gas when natural gas ran out in the early 1900s. In 1916, at the request of Governor James P. Goodrich, he drafted a bill which would have applied the same principle to all utilities in the state, but the bill was sidetracked by other issues such as World War I, prohibition, and woman suffrage.

Potts also had a literary bent, and wrote a number of papers and toasts for organizations to which he belonged.

Sources: Materials in collection
Indiana Biographical Series, Vol. 2, pp. 245, 274
Dunn, Indiana and Indianans, Vol. 5, pp. 1918-1920
Who Was Who in America, Vol. 1

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This collection, filling one manuscript box, contains some biographical material, mainly clippings, 7 photographs of family members and a number of essays, stories, and toasts written by Alfred Potts. Most are undated, but those with dates run from 1903 to 1916. (There is a Xerox copy of an 1852 letter from Oliver P. Morton to "Mary" with a mention of the Potts family.) The papers are arranged alphabetically by title.

Some of the stories are humorous. Some have a moral; for example, two (Folders 20, 21) deal with rich men and their treatment of their ungrateful heirs. Some of the essays also are humorous (Folders 6, 22), some didactic (Folder 15), some sentimental (Folder 12). Folder 10 contains a rather lengthy Life of Sam Houston, Folder 18 an even longer Symposium on the [First World] War.

Taken as a whole, the papers show Potts as having a literary talent combining humor, thoughtfulness, and an interest in history and current affairs.

CONTENTS

CONTENTS

Biographical

1852 letter, O. P. Morton to "Mary"

Areopagitica

Birthday toast to Potts 1903

Captain Bob's Woodlot

A cure for bachelors

Dealers in hope (astrologers, fortune-tellers)

The fall of Warsaw (poem)

How I re-won my wife

Life of Sam Houston

Our inheritance from chivalry

Our little girls

"Our state is rich..." (University Club 1905)

The revolt of the dishes

The scorcher

A sketch of two lovers

A study of the gentleman

A symposium on the war

The too serious (Indiana Underwriters 1904)

Was it madness?

The wills of the Ludlows

CONTAINER

Box 1, Folder 1

Box 1, Folder 2

Box 1, Folder 3

Box 1, Folder 4

Box 1, Folder 5

Box 1, Folder 6

Box 1, Folder 7

Box 1, Folder 8

Box 1, Folder 9

Box 1, Folder 10

Box 1, Folder 11

Box 1, Folder 12

Box 1, Folder 13

Box 1, Folder 14

Box 1, Folder 15

Box 1, Folder 16

Box 1, Folder 17

Box 1, Folder 18

Box 1, Folder 19

Box 1, Folder 20

Box 1, Folder 21

Woman and her clothes (Progressive Club 1916)

Photographs

Box 1, Folder 22

Visual Collection:
Photographs, Folder 1