BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Design Printing Company was a printing company located at 626 North Illinois Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

T. Scot Halpin was an artist and musician from Muscatine, Iowa. After he graduated from high school in 1972, Halpin moved to California where he practiced music as his profession. He was in several bands, and at the age of 19, he played as a substitute for Keith Moon in The Who at the Cow Palace. He was also a composer at the Headlands Center for the Arts. Halpin later went back to school to pursue art, earning his Master of Arts from San Francisco State University in Interdisciplinary Arts. He moved to Indiana in 1995 to focus on his artwork. He died in 2008.

Sally Eckman Roberts is an artist and illustrator who grew up in Indiana. She received her Bachelor of Fine Arts from Miami University in Ohio and later worked in design and corporate marketing in Indianapolis, Indiana. Sally later branched out on her own, creating Sally Eckman Roberts Designs where she uses watercolor and pencil to create nature inspired designs for gifts and home decor.
