Flooding in Indiana: An Oral History of the Flood of 2008

"The purpose of this project is to record the memories of individuals affected by the 2008 flooding to better understand the immediate and long-lasting environmental, social, political, and economic effects of the floods. These oral histories will record the narrators' understanding of their own flood-related memories, including shared or common experiences and will add to what we know while memories are still 'fresh'.

The project was directed by Dr. Philip Scarpino and funded by the Indiana Humanities Council. Background research was conducted by Heidi Martens.
