BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

H.E. (Harry Everett) Barnard (1874–1946) was born in Dunbarton, New Hampshire. He received his B.S. from the New Hampshire College of Agricultural and Mechanical Arts in 1899, and his PhD from Hanover (Indiana) College in 1913.

In 1901 Barnard became a chemist for the New Hampshire State Board of Health. That same year he married Marion Harvie. They moved to Indianapolis in 1905 when Barnard joined the staff of the Indiana State Board of Health. During this time he also served on the Indiana Food and Drug Commission and the Indiana Commission of Weights, as well as being food and drug inspection chemist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture. He later became director of the American Chemical Society and founding member and first president of its Indiana Section.

Barnard authored a number of New Hampshire and Indiana Board of Health reports, papers, and addresses on the subjects of food, drugs, water, sanitation, nutrition, child welfare and chemurgy. The Barnards left Indianapolis in 1919 but returned to the city after Harry's retirement.

Marion Harvie Barnard (1875–1969?) was born in Cheshire, England, and along with her sister, Alice, immigrated to the United States in the early 1890s and began teaching at a private girl's school in New England. She attended Brown University from 1898–1901 and married Harry Barnard upon her graduation. Marion Barnard's interests included women's suffrage, and she became treasurer of the Indiana Equal Suffrage Association. She also was a member of the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana. The Barnards had two children, Harvie Everett (b. 1903) and Marion Elizabeth (b. 1908).

Dr. Alice Harvie Duden (1873–1926) began her dental career working for a Dr. Brackett, a Newport, Rhode Island dentist, from 1895 until 1900, doing laboratory work. She then attended the Philadelphia Dental College (later Temple University School of Dentistry) for three years and did postgraduate work in Boston. Her first practice was in Concord, New Hampshire. In 1907, Alice Harvie married Hans Duden, an Indianapolis chemist with the firm of Kingan and Company and moved her practice to Indianapolis, where she remained until her death in 1926. She also taught at the Indiana Dental College.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The bulk of the Barnard collection consists of personal correspondence among family members and friends, especially Harry and Marion Barnard and Alice H. Duden. This correspondence can be divided into four distinct groupings.

The first group, 1892–1900, primarily consists of letters addressed to Marion Harvie or "Minnie," her childhood name. Among the correspondents is Rueben Peckham, an early admirer, and a friend they met on the trip from Scotland.

The second group of letters, 1900–01, comprises love letters between Marion Harvie and Harry Barnard, with scattered letters to and from Alice Harvie. These letters provide description of the Naval Proving Grounds at Indian Head, Maryland, where Harry served as a chemist. There also is a description of Marion's life at Brown University and the problems of setting up housekeeping in Concord, New Hampshire.

The third grouping of letters, 1902–26, are mainly addressed to Alice Harvie Duden from Barnard, his wife and children, and Dr. Duden's colleagues. Subjects discussed include life at Philadelphia Dental College, the problems of establishing a dental practice, Barnard's family life, and Alice's participation in various American Dental Society meetings. One letter of special interest in this group is a typed letter signed by Carrie Chapman Catt dated 20 February 1903 and addressed to Marion Barnard, concerning her work with the National Woman's Suffrage Association.

The fourth group, 1946–47, consists of letters of condolence to Marion Barnard on the death of her husband.

Also included in the collection are a variety of printed items. Among these are two publisher's catalogues dated 1894 and 1895; academic reports for Alice and Marion Harvie; certificates to practice dentistry in Indiana, 1907–26; regulations for the granting of a license to practice dentistry in Indiana; and a speech and a report by Harry Barnard.
