HISTORICAL SKETCHES

The E. C. Atkins Company was a saw manufacturer founded in 1856 by Elias Cornelius Atkins, a third-generation saw maker. The factory grew to be the largest saw manufacturer in the world and occupied an entire downtown Indianapolis city block bounded by S. Illinois, S. Capitol, W. South, and Henry streets, with additional buildings on adjacent streets. It continued as a family-run business until 1952, when it was bought by the Borg-Warner Corporation, which moved its operations to Mississippi. In 1963 the U.S. Post Office built a distribution center on the former site of the factory.

Philip Murray (1886–1952) served as president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO) from 1940 until his death. Born in Scotland, he immigrated to the United States in 1902, settled in Pennsylvania, and worked in the mines. He became president of the United Mine Workers (UMW) in his district of southwestern Pennsylvania in 1916. He served as vice president of the UMW of America from 1920 to 1942. He was very involved in the formation of the Committee of Industrial Organizations in 1935, which was later renamed the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The G. H. Hammond Company, a slaughterhouse and meat packing plant, was established in northwest Indiana in 1869 by George Hammond and others. In 1873, the town where the plant was located was named after Hammond. In the mid-1880s, a new plant was built in Omaha, Nebraska. The Car Route Sales Department was responsible for sale and shipping of products via the railroad. In 1902 the company was bought by the Chicago-based National Packing Co.

The Indiana Hardwood Lumbermen's Association was founded on 9 February 1899 when several hardwood lumbermen met at the Grand Hotel in Indianapolis to discuss the problems of marketing hardwoods nationally. The Association continues today.

The Indiana Society of Chicago was established on 22 September 1905 by George Ade, John T. McCutcheon, Edward M. Holloway and forty-four other men from Indiana who had moved to Chicago. The Society continues today as a link between Hoosiers and the city of Chicago.

Regal Stores was a chain of grocery stores in Indiana.

Sani-Serv / General Equipment Company, a leading manufacturer of restaurant equipment, was started by Frank P. Thomas in Indianapolis in 1930 to produce machines that he created. One of his inventions was the Sani-Serv, the first patented soft-serve ice cream machine, introduced at a 1948 trade convention. By 1957 the company was manufacturing all the equipment needed for a restaurant and opened its first hamburger stand, called Burger Chef. By 1966 there were 440 Burger Chef restaurants in the country. Frank P. Thomas, Jr., renamed the General Equipment Company, calling it Sani-Serv, and made it a division of Burger Chef. In 1968, Burger Chef was bought by General Foods.

The State Automobile Insurance Association was established in 1917.

Union Printing Crafts Tri-State Bowling Association held its first annual bowling tournament in 1916. It consisted of bowlers from Indiana, Ohio, and Kentucky.
