HISTORICAL SKETCH

Bessie Simpson, an Indianapolis resident called together a group of women to meet in her home on November 26, 1950 to explore the idea of becoming a part of The Links, Incorporated. The Links formed as a volunteer service organization in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 1946. By their first national meeting held in June 1949, there were 14 clubs. They now have 12,000 women of color distributed among nearly 300 chapters located in 41 states, the District of Columbia, and the Bahamas.

Indianapolis Chapter of Links, Inc. was formally inducted as a local chapter of the national organization on March 17, 1951. The charter members of the organization were: Olivia Anderson, Eugenia Asbury, Madeline Allen, Gladys Doyle, Shirley Evans, Jacqueline Hanley, Evelyn Hawkins, Helen Maxey, Vivian Moore, Annetta Lawson, Dora Powell Blackburn, Bessie Simpson, Edythe Walker, and Henrine Banks. They were installed by members of the Dayton and Cincinnati Links chapters.

From their early years, the Indianapolis Chapter of the Links has carried out the mission of the national organization, and has worked to contribute to the cultural, civic, and social well being of the community. It has collaborated with numerous organizations, in support of their programs. It has worked with the various settlement houses in Indianapolis, demonstrated political advocacy for purpose of improving quality of life, and supported the arts. It has directly contributed to many charity and arts institutions. Its membership includes a cross-section of professional women who are leaders in their various fields.

Since 1983, the signature fundraising event of the Indianapolis Chapter of Links, Inc. has been its annual Barbeque and Grille where prominent people have been placed on the hot seat. Those roasted by Amos Brown, a seasoned pit master, have included entrepreneurs, architects, civic and religious leaders, politicians, athletes, journalists, physicians, attorneys, and artists. Social service agencies, youth programs, and educational endeavors have been recipients of the money raised from the roast. The charity event has supported several organizations and programs including the Alpha Home for the Aged, Big Sisters, Big Brothers, Center for Leadership Development, Flanner House, and Martin University.

A second chapter of the Links began in Indianapolis in 1994. At the invitation of the Indianapolis Chapter of Links, Inc., a group of women came together to form a Links interest group. Known previously as the Hoosier Capital League, the group became the Circle City Chapter of the Links, Inc. It is the 263rd Links chapter of the national organization.

The Indianapolis Chapter of Links, Inc. strives to follow the five-facet model stated by the national organization: “National Trends and Services, The Arts, Services to Youth, International Trends and Services and Health and Human Services. The programs are implemented through strategies such as public information and education, economic development, and public policy campaigns.” Many links and connecting links are vital organs within the community making connections throughout the social, economic and political fabric throughout the state and country. The Indianapolis Chapter of The Links, Inc. spotlights many of those individuals and the group’s achievement in the two booklets recounting the history and highlights of their organization.
