Isaac James (fl. 1841) lived in Center Township, Wayne County, Indiana, near Centerville. He had a son, Henry James, who apparently was not self-supporting. In 1841, "being in the decline of life," he bound his heirs and executors to give $2,000 to the West Grove Monthly Meeting of the Society of Friends to "comfortably provide" for his son as long as Henry remained a member of the Meeting.
West Grove Monthly Meeting was organized in 1815. Its first building was a log cabin, replaced by another structure in 1831. It was on West Grove Road three miles northwest of Centerville. It maintained a school through several years in the mid-nineteenth century. In 1884 it had 125 members.
