BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

John Godman Payne (ca. 1847–ca. 1889) and Mary Byfield (born ca. 1846) were married on 25 October 1868 in Jefferson County, Indiana. They had two children: Gavin L. (3 September 1869–13 September 1939) and Janet (1872 or 1873–18 July 1948). From 1886 to 1889 John G. Payne was a postal clerk, having previously been an auctioneer.

Gavin L. Payne, born in Wirt, Indiana near Madison, became a major financier and civic leader in Indianapolis.

Janet Payne was a noted Arts and Crafts Movement metalsmith, jewelry maker, and teacher at Shortridge High School in Indianapolis. In October 1895 she married Joseph Bowles, the publisher of Modern Art and an important figure in the Arts and Crafts Movement in Indianapolis.

Horatio Byfield (born ca. 1796) appears in the 1830 census in Scott County and in the 1840 census in Jefferson County. In 1850 the Byfields lived in Lancaster Township, Jefferson County. The 1850 census lists Emily (age 10), Mary (age 4), and Charles (age 10 months) among twelve children born to Horatio and (Janette) Byfield. Neither Corbin nor Henrietta appears among the twelve Byfield siblings in the 1850 census but are probably Byfield relatives.

Charles Byfield (1849 or 1850–5 March 1900) held several civic offices in Franklin, Indiana. He was the treasurer of the school district from 1870–72, city clerk from 1878–1880, Franklin township trustee from 1881–83, and clerk of the circuit court from 1891–99.

The political parade cabinet card appears to have been taken in Indianapolis during President Grover Cleveland's Goodwill Tour of 1887. On their first stop of the tour, President Cleveland and his wife Frances are seen riding in a carriage surrounded by supporters in top hats; John Payne marked by an X is in the crowd.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The collection contains 25 black-and-white photographs and 1 cased tintype; among these are 13 cartes de visite and 6 cabinet cards. The photographs are 6" x 8" or smaller and are stored in two photograph folders; the cased tintype is located in the cased images storage area. Notations written on the photographs in different hands were used to identify individuals in the photographs.

The photographs in this collection probably belonged to Janet Payne Bowles. Janet's daughter, Mira, donated the photographs to the Indiana Historical Society and the annotations on the backs of several photographs support this conclusion. The photographs are mostly of Payne and Byfield family members and their properties.

The collection includes six photographs of John Godman Payne, and two childhood photographs of Gavin L. Payne. There is only one photograph that includes Janet Payne: a group photograph made by Martinsville photographer M. B. Collins, on 4 July 1887. The group includes Dr. Carleton McCullough, the Indianapolis minister who, among his many accomplishments, founded the Plymouth Institute in 1884 to expand the educational and cultural opportunities of Indianapolis youth.

Six photographs are related to the Byfield family including a snapshot of Horatio Byfield's mill in Lancaster, Indiana. Photographs of several other relatives complete the collection.

Included with the photographs is a letter from Bruce Rogers of New Fairfield, Connecticut to Janet Bowles on 10 January 1932. In it he expressed his appreciation for a note of sympathy he received from Janet after the death of his wife.
