HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Jewish Welfare Federation of Indianapolis was established in 1905 as the Jewish Federation to centralize fund raising and allocate funds to support local and nation Jewish organizations. Initially the federation, which consisted of existing immigrant aid societies such as the Industrial Removal Office and the Hebrew Ladies Benevolent Society, provided services to the poor in the Jewish immigrant community through financial support, employment opportunities, health care, and assistance in adjusting to American life. With the decline of immigration in the 1920s, the organization's interests shifted to Jewish community-related projects such as the Kirshbaum Center (1926), a community center which served as a social gathering and meeting place and offered adult education programs. In addition, the federation became a member of the Indianapolis War Chest (later the Community Chest, then the Community Fund) in 1918. The Jewish Welfare Fund, an autonomous, yet constituent agency of the Jewish Federation, was established in 1926 to raise and distribute funds for areas which the Community Fund would not support. The Welfare Fund conducted annual fund raising campaigns that provided support for local and national Jewish organizations and which helped to cover federation deficits. In 1948 the Jewish Federation and the Jewish Welfare Fund were combined and reorganized to form the Jewish Welfare Federation of Indianapolis. The federation continues to conduct annual fund raising campaigns to support national Jewish organizations such as the United Jewish Appeal and the federation's local member organizations: the Jewish Education Association (now the Bureau of Jewish Education), the Jewish Community Center Association, Jewish Social Services, Jewish Family and Children's Services, Park Regency retirement housing, and the Hooverwood home for the aged. Also affiliated with the federation is the Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council, which was started in 1947 as a joint venture of the Anti-Defamation League and the American Jewish Congress, and became an independent organization in 1954. The council originally concentrated on combating anti-Semitism, but it later became involved in working for civil and human rights for both Jews and non-Jews.

The Federation continues to support the needs of the United Jewish Appeal, local organizations, and overseas and national agencies. Financial support is received from the annual JWF campaign, the United Way, membership dues and fees from local Jewish agencies, and the endowment. In 1984 the Federation allocated 55% of its budget to the United Jewish Appeal; 42.8% to local Jewish Agency needs (Jewish Community Center Organization, Jewish Family and Children's Services, Hooverwood, and the Bureau of Jewish Education), federation campaign and administration, and special funds such as scholarships and maintenance and upkeep of Jewish buildings; and 2.2% to oversees and national agencies such as the American Jewish Committee, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, and the National Jewish Welfare Board.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This collection is a continuation of the records of the Jewish Federation of Indianapolis, M 0463, and primarily contains the organization's records from the 1980s up until the time it moved its office from the English Foundation building to its current location on Hoover Road in 1997.

Series I contains the correspondence to and from the Jewish Federation and numerous other related organizations and individuals, as well as meeting minutes from several organizations, 1953–1995. These include: the Jewish Education Association, the Jewish Community Center Association, the Hooverwood homes for the aged, Park Regency retirement apartments, the Jewish Family and Children's Services, Jewish Social Services, Young Leadership Council, philanthropic funds and memorials, and national Jewish organizations such as the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds and the United Jewish Appeal.

Series II contains fundraising materials and correspondence for campaigns from 1982–1994.
