HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Laurel Review was the principal newspaper of Laurel, Franklin County, Indiana, from 1877 to 1932. The paper was founded by Benjamin A. Smith, and was sold in turn to John F. Geyer in 1879 and to John O'Hair in 1885. O'Hair acted as business manager, and hired W. H. Glidewell as editor. With a hiatus from 1898 to 1907, O'Hair remained the owner until his death in 1914, and his widow was owner until 1916.
