BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Margaret Jameson Wildhack (b. ca 1920) was born in Indianapolis, the daughter of Donald and Margaret Jameson. During World War II she served in the WAVES. After the war she married William Wildhack, a reporter for the Indianapolis News. For a while in the 1960s she wrote a column for the News.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

This collection contains one item, a series of photocopies of a series of articles written in 1965 by Margaret Wildhack for the Indianapolis News on "Society and How It Grew." Three issues, numbers 7, 13, and 14, are missing. The articles, written in a chatty style but full of interesting detail, trace both the beginnings of "Society" and its current manifestations.
