NOTES:
BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES

Samuel Elliott Perkins (1811–1879) was born in Vermont to John Trumbull and Catherine (Willard) Perkins. Orphaned at an early age he was adopted and raised by a William Baker in Conway, Massachusetts. He worked as a teacher to pay for his formal education at Yates County Academy in New York and the Fellenberg Academy, Greenfield, Mass. He also studied law with attorney Thomas J. Nevius, and served an apprenticeship with Henry Wells of the New York Supreme Court. During the 1830s he moved to Indiana where he practiced law and was editor and publisher of the Jeffersonian in Wayne County. He met and married Amanda J. Pyle of Richmond and they had ten children, only one of whom, Samuel E. Perkins II, survived his father. He was appointed to the Indiana Supreme Court in 1846 by Governor James Whitcomb and he moved to Indianapolis and served from 1846 to 1864. He taught law at Northwestern Christian University (now Butler) and Indiana University Law School in Bloomington. He was elected to the Supreme Court again in 1876 and served until his death in 1879.

Samuel Elliott Perkins II (1846–1915), the son of Samuel Elliott Perkins, was born in Richmond September 2, 1846, and moved with his family to Indianapolis soon after. He was a student at Northwestern Christian University where his father taught law. On July 11, 1877 he married Susan Elizabeth Hatch. He practiced law with his father for a short time but following the elder Perkins’ death he devoted his energies to managing his properties and to legal counseling rather than to courtroom law. In Indianapolis the family lived at 1011 N. Pennsylvania St.

Susan Elizabeth (Hatch) Perkins, was the wife of Samuel E. Perkins II, and the daughter of Volney G. and Mary Hitchcock Hatch. She was born in La Salle, Illinois, ca. 1860 and moved with her parents to Indianapolis in 1873 where her father operated a general store. She studied at Lake Geneva Seminary in Wisconsin, Northwestern Christian University (Butler), and at Miami University in Ohio. She married Samuel Elliott Perkins on July 11, 1877. The union produced two children; Volney Hatch Perkins, and Samuel Elliott Perkins III. She was active in local women’s groups and during World War I knitted sweaters for American servicemen in France, one of whom wrote her a letter of thanks found in this collection.

Volney H. Perkins was the son of Samuel E. Perkins II and Susan Hatch Perkins. He was in his junior year in Mechanical Engineering at Purdue University when he died, April 26, 1900. His parents endowed a scholarship at Purdue in his name.

Samuel E. Perkins III, born in Indianapolis, May 8, 1878, was educated in public and private schools in his hometown, graduated from Wabash College (1900) and Indiana University Law School (1902). He was married in 1901 to Mary F. Milford, a native of Crawfordsville. Later (1906–1918) he was treasurer of the Indiana Bar Association. In time poor health forced an early retirement before his death on January 31, 1941. A Fellow of the Indiana Academy of Sciences, he was particularly interested in ornithology, writing an unpublished manuscript, “Monuments to Scotsmen in America” in which he paid particular attention to Alexander Wilson, the father of American ornithology. He was a member of and served as president of the Nature Study Club for several years.

Samuel E. Perkins IV is the son of Samuel E. Perkins III and the donor of the materials in this collection.

Other individuals and groups represented in this collection:

Henry J. Hale: elder member of Nature Study Club was born ca. 1835 in Connecticut and owned an orchard on West 10th Street in Indianapolis. He is identified in many images in the collection and some of his correspondence is also in the collection.

Marshall M. Milford: ancestor of Mary F. Milford, wife of Samuel E. Perkins III.

William Watson Woollen: best known for his legal writings, Woollen was also an avid naturalist.

Woollen’s Garden of Birds and Botany (Buzzard’s Roost) is a 55 acre park and nature preserve located on the south valley wall of Fall Creek. It was donated to the city by William Watson Woollen on Dec. 9, 1909.

The Nature Study Club of Indiana was founded in 1908 by William Watson Woollen of Indianapolis and was incorporated in 1914. Soon after he donated “Woollen's Garden of Birds and Botany” to the city he started the Nature Study Club of Indiana. The Club was dissolved in December 1996. Charter members of the Nature Study Club included prominent Indianapolis citizens of the time.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Manuscript Materials:
Folders 1–4 are comprised of materials relating to Samuel Elliott Perkins. They contain lectures, addresses, notes, and numerous fragments in script concerned with constitutional law, history of civilization, theory of human relations, the contrast of American and English legal systems, and advice to law students. There are fragmentary notes on court cases, and an address given to the Literary Societies of Indiana University.

Bound Volume 1698 the Index Rerum...1860 is an index of articles or books of interest that was perhaps kept by Judge Samuel Elliott Perkins.

Bound Volume 1699 was kept by Samuel Elliott Perkins II, and contains notes on lectures from 1863–1864 for Law Classes at Northwestern Christian University. The first page of the notebook is dated Dec. 7, 1863. The notes on lectures continue to page 167, and pages 318–322. On page 168 is a clipping from The Sun Logansport, Ind. Newspaper [May 1872] Conclusion of address of W.P. Fishback, chief editor, Indianapolis Daily Journal, before the State Editorial Association. Laid in, in front [reprint sheet] is a Supplement to Gazette, Speech of Hon. C.F. McNutt before the Democratic Convention at Martinsville, June 1, 1872 and other clippings from newspapers from 1872.

The remainder of manuscript materials concern Woollen’s Garden and the Nature Study Club, correspondence to Susan Hatch Perkins, and the Marshall M. Milford family Bible.

Visual Materials:
The majority of images are snapshots of WWI era Indianapolis, Fort Harrison, parades, automobile trips to Indiana parks and Woolen’s Garden with the Nature Study Club and the Prairie Trek group, and trips outside Indiana. These were probably taken by Elliott Perkins III. There are photos, glass plates, and lantern slides.

The collection includes an album containing twenty-six miniature tintypes. The album belonged to Susan E. (Hatch) Perkins, paternal grandmother of the donor. The subjects are mostly children, members of the Hatch family of La Salle, Illinois, and Indianapolis. Other photographs include snapshots of Volney Hatch Perkins, his friends, and his room at Purdue University.

Printed Material in the collection consists of a Republican Ticket, for Oct. 8, 1872 for candidates in Indiana, Marion County, Center Township; a program from B. F. Keith’s Theater in Indianapolis (Dec. 1927); and a program for a dinner held to honor James Whitcomb Riley. The event took place October 7, 1915 at the Claypool Hotel in Indianapolis. The program includes a layout of tables and a list of guests. Samuel E. Perkins III was in attendance at the dinner.
