HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Visit Indy organization was established in 1923. In 1978, it began using the Indianapolis Convention Center and Visitors Association name; this was later changed in 2012 to Visit Indy as community members associated the Indy nickname with a vision of a hipper and more hospitable city. Visit Indy is a non-profit sales and marketing branch of the Indiana Convention Center. Its goal is to promote the city of Indianapolis as a destination for business, leisure, and convention pursuits as illustrated by its mission “to increase Indianapolis growth by strategically selling the destination to conventions, meetings, events, and leisure travelers.”

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

This collection contains photographs, slides, transparencies, and negatives used by Visit Indy to promote the city of Indianapolis, with the bulk of the material being from ca. 1988-2001. There are some earlier images dating as far back as ca. 1964. Each folder lists the address of the location, when able to be determined.

Subjects depicted include sports venues, concert venues, hotels, universities, the zoo, parks, memorials and monuments, historic homes, art installations, churches, museums, restaurants, shopping centers, theaters, street scenes, government buildings, and the Indianapolis skyline. Significant buildings and other sites are included, such as the Indiana Convention Center, the Major Taylor Velodrome, the Hoosier Dome, the RCA Dome, Market Square Arena, the Walker Theatre, Union Station, Scottish Rite Cathedral, Monument Circle, the Indianapolis Tennis Center, IU Natatorium, and the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. There are images of events such as the Indianapolis 500 race, Circle Center Mall grand opening, the mini-marathon, and festivals. Some broad locations such as Zionsville and rural Indianapolis are included, as well as some unidentified locations. There are also some photographs of building renderings and models.
