HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Woman's Press Club of Indiana (WPCI) was organized on February 18, 1913 for the purpose of bringing the women journalists of the state into "a closer fellowship of social and intellectual intercourse." Originally, Club members were Indiana female authors and reporters, but later included women from radio and television as well.

Over the years, the Club has engaged in many journalistic and educational activities. These include donating books to libraries, contributing to the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital, and sponsoring writing contests and scholarships. It also has provided seminars, workshops, and forums for women writers and reporters. Many prominent authors, lecturers and statesmen have appeared on its programs. To honor one such prominent author, the Club erected a statue in Turkey Run State Park as a memorial to Juliet V. Strauss, a writer for the Ladies Home Journal and the Indianapolis News

In 1937, the Club became a charter member of the National Federation of Press Women (NFPW). Since that time, members of the Indiana Club have served as National Presidents. Today, the Woman's Press Club of Indiana remains an active organization.

Significant Events

1937: Woman's Press Club of Indiana becomes a founding affiliate of the National Federation of Press Women. WPCI's Vera Hall is elected NFPW first vice president and Louise Eleanor Ross Kleinhenz is elected secretary.
WPCI holds its first communications contest for women journalists throughout the state.

1940: WPCI participates in the newly established NFPW Communications Contest.

1962: The Kate Milner Rabb Award is established as WPCI's highest award. It honors professional excellence and service to the club in the current year. Kate Milner Rabb was a columnist for the Indianapolis Star and president of WPCI from 1929-1931.

1963: Hortense Myers is the first delegate from Woman's Press Club of Indiana to be elected president of the National Federation of Press Women. Myers was a longtime UPI reporter and president of WPCI from 1954-1956.

Woman's Press Club of Indiana hosts the National Federation of Press Women convention in Indianapolis for the first time.

1965: Marie Fraser is named the first Communicator of Achievement nominee from WPCI to compete for the National Federation of Press Women's highest award. After a career in journalism in Indianapolis, Fraser became director of information services at Ball State University in 1960 and served 27 years under six presidents, until her retirement in 1986.

1966: WPCI nominee Hortense Myers is named NFPW Communicator of Achievement.

1973: Naomi Whitesell is the second delegate from WPCI to become president of NFPW.

1974: Legislative Awareness Seminar is established by WPCI, Women in Communications Inc. and Women in Radio and Television. It continues through 1986 with WPCI's Jackie Davis and Ann W. King as co-chairs.

1975: The Honeycomb Award is established to recognize the entrant with the highest number of award points in the annual WPCI Communications Contest.

1977: Hortense Myers, past president and former WPCI Communicator of Achievement, is the first WPCI member to be inducted into the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame. She was the first woman to work for the International Press News Service (INS) in 1942, then began a long career with UPI in 1958.

1979: Woman's Press Club of Indiana hosts its second NFPW convention in Indianapolis. Past President Betty Childers is convention chairperson.

1986: WPCI member Mary Benedict is inducted into the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame. She was a longtime high school journalism teacher and also served as director of the Indiana High School Journalism Institute.

1987: Member Dann Denny becomes the first male to win the Honeycomb Award for most winning entries in the annual communications contest. He'll win four more times over the next few years.

1988: Member Gene Slaymaker interrupts Denny's run to become the second male to win the Honeycomb Award.

1989: Hester Alverson Moffett, WPCI's first president, is inducted into the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame.

1990: WPCI nominee Dorothy Steinmeier is named NFPW Communicator of Achievement

1992: WPCI member Esther Griffin White (1869-1954) is inducted into the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame.

1996: WPCI re-establishes its On the Job with a Media Pro program, originally started in the late 1970s, in which members shared their jobs with a high school student for a couple of hours a day. It was the brainchild of then-president Childers (1976-79).

2001: Julie V. Strauss, founding member of WPCI, is inducted into the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame. She wrote the column, "The Ideas of a Plain Country Woman," for the Ladies Home Journal from 1905 until her death in 1918.

WPCI hosts its third NFPW convention in Indianapolis, with decreased attendance due to the tragedy on September 11th. Jackie Davis was convention chairperson.

2003: Donna Douglas Penticuff is the third WPCI delegate to be elected president of NFPW.

2006: WPCI nominee Vivian Sade is named runner up in the NFPW Communicator of Achievement competition.

2010: WPCI nominee Elizabeth Granger is named runner up in the NFPW Communicator of Achievement competition.

2012: Kate Milner Rabb, longtime Indianapolis Star columnist in the early half of 20th century and past president of WPCI, is inducted into the Indiana Journalism Hall of Fame.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Series 1: Administrative Files

This series contains material from meetings, correspondence, and event planning. The first part of the series is in chronological order and the rest is in alphabetical order by folder title.

Series 2: Membership Files

This series includes material and objects relating to members of the organization and of the National Federation of Press Women. The first part of the series is in chronological order, the second part is alphabetical by folder title and the rest of the series is member files ordered by last name. Documents dated before the organization's inception in 1913 can be found in this series, most likely in material from founding members.

Series 3: Conferences and Workshops

This series contains material used by the Woman's Press Club of Indiana for planning and conducting local or regional conferences and workshops for its members. The Legislative Awareness Seminar was the largest of these and generally occurred in January from 1973 to 1986. The 1987 seminar was cancelled in December 1986.

Series 4: Contests

This series contains material produced by the Woman's Press Club of Indiana and the National Federation of Press Women for their respective writing contests, including entries and lists of winners.

Series 5: Financial Papers

This series includes receipts, invoices, treasurer reports, account information, and correspondence relating to conference and workshop expenses, WPCI finances, and both the General and Education Fund. The material is divided into chronological and alphabetical sections.

Series 6: Publications

This series contains material published by the Woman's Press Club of Indiana, including books, member directories, and their monthly bulletin.

Series 7: National Federation of Press Women (NFPW)

This series contains material concerning the National Federation of Press Women, including member directories, correspondence, magazines, newsletters, and artifacts. The objects appear at the end of the series.

Series 8: National Conferences/Conventions

This series contains materials produced in planning and conducting the national convention/conference each year. The conference changes location each year and is hosted by the National Federation of Press Women in conjunction with the local state affiliate. Indiana hosted the conference in 1963, 1979, and 2001. The material and artifacts are organized by convention year.

Series 9: Visuals and Media

This series contains photographs, negatives, and slides taken of people and events associated with the Woman's Press Club of Indiana. It also includes DVDs and VHS tapes not in other series.

Series 10: Audio Cassettes

This series contains audio cassettes related to the Woman's Press Club of Indiana. They are ordered alphabetically.

Series 11: Artifacts

This series is comprised of objects related to the Woman's Press Club of Indiana that are not included in other series. These items are organized by date.
